

Travel

KAIETEUR NATIONAL PARK, GUYANA

---

Kaieteur National Park is a huge 5,000 sq km area surrounded by the lush tropical rainforest of Guyana. It contains the largest single-drop waterfall in the world - Kaieteur Falls.

The park's spectacular landscape and wildlife make it one of South America's most popular eco-tourism destinations. The falls alone attract thousands of visitors each year who come to view their majestic beauty while also getting a chance to spot some of the park's animals, including monkeys, sloths, toucans and ocelots. Visitors can explore the region's culture through its Amerindian villages as well as take thrilling tours down the Potaro River by boat or on horseback. The area is full of natural wonders that are sure to take your breath away!

---

---

Kaieteur Falls

Kaieteur Falls is a mesmerizing waterfall located in South America, nestled between Guyana and Brazil. With its awesome height, the waterfall is one of the most impressive sights in all of Guyana.

The only way to truly appreciate this natural wonder is by flying to Kaieteur Falls, taking in the unparalleled beauty from above. The flight over the forests, savannahs and rugged terrain that lie at its foot won't disappoint visitors seeking a truly special experience. From fiery sunsets as you touch down at dusk to aerial views that can't be matched any other way, there's no doubt that flying to Kaieteur Falls could be an adventure like no other!